

Rhetorical Situation: Disney movies and racial stereotypes

Topic: Disney entertainment films and racial stereotypes behind those films.

Purpose: to aware adults when it comes to Disney movies and racial meanings behind the movie

Audience: adults

Genre: Argumentative essay

Thesis: Disney movies should be more aware of the racial stereotypes and meanings they put into their films.

Tone: Persuasive

New Research Proposal Format:

Argument Proposal: Persuasive and debatable

General to specific: Disney

Research Question: How does Disney in the past shown racial stereotypes in films?

Thesis / Position: Disney films should imply correct if they want to show someone's race and culture in a correct way.

Three Pro Points: Arguing why Disney films should do a better format if trying to input races in a correct way.

Pro Point 1: Racism is not funny

Pro Point 3: Can mislead children to think of one's culture incorrectly.

Opposing Viewpoint 1: Everyone is a critic especially when it comes to movies

Refute: Yes it is ok to be opinionated but when it is offending a race it can be hurtful and damaging to a person because of who they are.

Write a short paragraph on why you would like to write about this argument. What is your interest and connection to the topic?

I wanted to write about Disney and racial stereotypes because I remember exploring through YouTube and came upon a video talking about Disney and some racial stereotypes in movies and it talked about a certain scene in the movie "Lady and The Tramp" where the cats were singing a certain song and the way they were featured and the way they were speaking they were making fun of Asian people and stereotyping Asian people by the way they spoke and looked. While looking back at watching that movie I didn't notice it until I watched it again as I got older it was recognized it was kind of messed up.